

San Francisco to Los Angeles

Trip Length: 10 Riding Days + 2 Rest Days

Start: San Francisco, CA

End: Los Angeles, CA

Distance: 500-540 miles/800-885 km

Difficulty: Challenging

Itinerary Summary

Leave the bustling Bay Area for Redwood forests, scenic coastal cliffs, and Southern California sunshine. You'll ride through the Santa Cruz Mountains, along the Pacific past old fishing towns like Monterey, artist communities like Carmel, and endless miles of coastal bliss past Big Sur, San Simeon and San Luis Obispo. We'll then head inland to one of Southern California's largest lakes, Lake Cachuma, before riding over the Santa Barbara Mountains to where the palms grow year round and the boardwalks are plentiful. Past Oceano, and Malibu, you'll finish your ride in Santa Monica just West of Los Angeles, taking in all the glory of your adventure, beach side.

A Note on Bike Touring

More than just a bike tour

Travel By Bike

We believe that the most powerful journeys are challenging, self-propelled, outdoor adventures. This is why we find bike touring to be one of the most fulfilling ways to travel in the beautiful outdoors. As a cyclist, you truly feel everything on the road. You are more vulnerable and open, allowing you to find connection with those you'd least expect. Your senses are enhanced, and you can take the time to reflect on everything you pass. Bike touring is more than getting from A to B by bike, it is about giving yourself time to explore everything in between.

Travel Local

As a bike tourist, you are making a huge impact on local economies wherever you ride. Comparing the impact of a road tripper to a bike tourer, you will spend on average 4x more time in any given town than someone in a motor vehicle. For each day you could drive your route, you will spend approximately 4.5 days biking that same span of road. This means that you are a huge force in the economic empowerment of the towns you bike through. While this may not seem obvious to some, it is making a huge difference to the small communities along your route. We ask you to keep this in mind when touring, so that you can be a bike touring ambassador to others on your journey, and make decisions that benefit the communities that host you.

Thank You for Greening Our Roads

Bicycle advocacy movements are popping up all around the country. Not only is biking good for our environment by cutting down on motor vehicle usage and emissions, but it has been shown to improve local economies, increase social solidarity, and is just a lot of fun generally. To support this movement, local communities are petitioning their counties to improve bike infrastructure and educate both drivers and cyclists on road safety. You are a testament to the increased demand for such programs, and just by biking along the coast, you are making a huge statement. On behalf of biking associations all around the country and from Best Coast Biking, thank you for being part of this movement.

Now, back to the fun part, below you'll find details about your upcoming trip!

Day By Day

Arrival Day | San Francisco

Arrive into San Francisco and go explore! Here, each neighborhood has a distinct history and culture. Iconic buildings, famous music venues, tasty avant garde dining, and breathtaking views of the bay all around, there really is so much to discover. Get yourself and your bike ready, pack up, and get a good night's rest before you hit the road!

San Francisco - Big Basin | 52.1 miles

Skip the busy bay, and start riding from South Bay's Millbrae BART station. We'll climb up and out of town first thing to beautiful forested bike paths along the San Andreas Lake and Crystal Spring Reservoirs. We'll bike along quiet cyclist filled roads, and up to Skyline before descending into the Big Basin Redwood Forest. Camp among the Redwoods in the mountains.

Campground Information: Big Basin Redwoods State Park

Price: $6 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, toilets, coin operated hot showers, potable water, picnic tables, food storage lockers, fire rings, firewood for sale, hiking trails.

Big Basin - New Brighton | 32.3 miles

Start riding downhill through the Santa Cruz Mountains, pausing for the occasional awe-inspiring view of the forest and ocean if the fog has cleared. Pass through quaint mountain towns before entering one of California's surf capitals, Santa Cruz. Ride past the boardwalk, and out of town to New Brighton campsite for the night.

Campground Information: New Brighton State Beach

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, toilets, coin operated hot showers, potable water, picnic tables, food storage lockers, fire rings, firewood for sale, beach access.

New Brighton - Monterey | 42 miles

Biking through small communities, enjoy quiet residential roads, bike paths and seaside views on your way to Monterey. Once the main cannery of the state, Monterey has a bustling artisan community. Incredible wildlife thrives along the coast, and there's plenty to explore in town. Ride up to the top of town to Veteran's Campsite for the night.

Campground Information: Veteran's Memorial Park

Price: $6 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, toilets, free hot showers, potable water, picnic tables, food storage lockers, 1 mile from Downtown Monterey. Please note that local homeless people frequently use this campground. Please be courteous, but please do not leave your belongings unattended, as theft can be a problem.

Monterey - Big Sur | 44.5 miles

Whether you climb up first thing in the morning or take the long way along the coast, start the day with the famous 17-mile drive through Pebble Beach. Stop in Carmel for lunch and take a visit to the beach before rejoining the 1 for miles of rolling coastal bliss. Big sur is your reward for the day, where you'll finish at Pfeiffer Big Sur Campsite for a night nestled amongst giant Redwoods.

Campground Information: Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, toilets, token operated hot showers (available for purchase at camp), picnic tables, fire rings, potable water, hiking trails. (Rest day spot? There are a ton of great trails right from the campground!) When you leave, be sure to stock up on water as there are few sources for the next 2 days – we recommend packing a few extra filled water bottles each as you leave Big Sur.

Big Sur - Kirk Creek | 28 miles

Keep the day short and enjoy all the beauty around you... Grab a bite at the Big Sur Bakery before you start heading down the coast. Stop for hikes, visit hidden beaches and check out the famous McWay Waterfall while biking some of Southern California's biggest and most beautiful climbs. Make sure to stop in Lucia at the convenient store for water (3.5 miles before camp), as there is none at the campsite, and none for most of tomorrow! Finish your day at Kirk Creek, a small cliffside campsite, and sleep with the sound of the waves below.

Campground Information: Kirk Creek Campground

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, picnic tables, fire rings, vaulted toilet, no water, no showers.

Kirk Creek – San Simeon | 40.6 miles

Two of Southern California's big climbs are on the route today. Bike up to enjoy the epic view and soar down the curving coastal highway 1. Pass sea lions and catch distant glimpses of the famous Hearst Castle. We'll finish our ride in the small town of San Simeon, where you can either stay at the roadside campground or finish a couple miles before in the small tourist center of town where you'll find an array of sleeping options.

Campground Information: Hearst San Simeon State Park

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker ($20 - Washburn Environmental Campsite 1 mile away)

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, picnic tables, fire rings, toilets, coin operated showers, potable water, food storage box, firewood for sale.

San Simeon - Oceano | 56 miles

After leaving San Simeon, we'll head inland for a bit, riding between rolling hills. We'll briefly ride along the coast again in Morro Bay, before heading inland again to San Luis Obispo. Stop here in this quaint college town and explore the downtown core. Leaving town, continue over rolling hills to Pismo Beach, where you can visit the famous Monarch butterfly colony before finishing the day in Oceano.

Campground Information: Oceano Dunes RV Park

Price: $13 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, picnic tables, fire pit, toilets, hot showers, potable water.

Oceano - Lake Cachuma | 78 miles

Today, we pedal away from the busy coast roads, heading inland to smaller, more rural towns. We'll pass Missions, forest lined creek roads, meadows, and small adorable towns on our way to Lake Cachuma, where we'll camp lakeside for the night.

Campground Information: Lake Cachuma Recreation Area

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, picnic tables, coin operated hot showers, toilets, potable water, general store, boat and kayak rentals on the lake.

Lake Cachuma - Foster Creek | 58 miles

Starting our day with a major climb, we'll soon be rewarded with some of the most incredible views Southern California has to offer. From the top of the Santa Barbara mountains, you'll see rolling hills and coastline for miles. Enjoy the descent into town, passing the famous Mission, and take a break while exploring State St. From Santa Barbara, continue south along the coast, finishing on the coast in Ventura. The campground is just out of town under the trees.

Campground Information: Foster Park Camp

Price: $5 Hiker/Biker

Open: Year Round

Facilities: Hiker/biker site, picnic tables, vaulted toilets, no showers, potable water, fire rings, hiking trails.

Foster Creek - Santa Monica, LA | 66 miles

The coastal stretch to Santa Monica is dotted with state beaches to the right and coastal mountains to the left. Traffic can be busy at times, but we get away from the main road when we can. Passing Malibu, we finish our ride just after the Santa Monica Pier. Welcome to LA!

Alternatively, leaving Oxnard, detour through the Santa Monica Mountains for quieter roads, rolling hills, and beautiful natural vistas. Once you're in Malibu, you'll rejoin the shoreline, for a coastal cruise down to the Santa Monica Pier.

Starting Point and Finish: The Rundown on SF & LA

San Francisco

Things to do

- Outdoor Adventures: Explore Golden Gate Park (closed to traffic every Sunday). Hike through Land's End or down to Baker Beach from the Presidio. Stroll the length of Ocean Beach.
- Famous San Francisco: Gather items for a picnic lunch, and people watch at Dolores Park or Alamo Square (get a photo of the Painted Ladies here); walk the length of the Embarcadero and visit the Ferry Building, the Exploratorium, Pier 39, Cannery Row, and Ghirardelli Square; take a mural tour through the Mission District and get a sense for the city's politico-art culture; get your culture fix at the SFMOMA, De Young Museum, and the Legion of Honor; step into China Town or North Beach for some instant world travel; catch some live music at a famous venue like The Fillmore, Great American Music Hall, The Independent or one of the smaller venues in the Mission.
- Bay Area Excursions: Head across the bay, and visit Oakland's Uptown neighborhood or Jack London Square. Bars, music venues, and dining options will keep you busy all evening. Surf? Head down to Pacifica for the Bay's surf Mecca. Take a day trip on the water and visit Angel Island and Alcatraz. Catch a home game from one of the Bay's sport teams (Giants, Athletics, Warriors).

Our drinking & dining recommendations

- Brunch: It's San Francisco- you're allowed to indulge. Our favorite spots include: Maven, The Corner Store, Ella's, Zazie, Starbelly, Sabrosa, Boxing Room, State Bird Provisions, Tartine Bakery & Foreign Cinema.
- Lunch: SF has some of the best tacos and Mexican cuisine around. See for yourself: Taqueria Vallarta (low key & delicious), Cholita Linda, Lolo, Nopalito, food carts abound in the Mission.
- Dinner: With more than something for everybody, here's a short list of our top picks: Foreign Cinema, El Techo (rooftop), Gracias Madre (vegan), Marlowe, Scotland Yard, Nopa, Liholiho Yacht Club & Tadich Grill.
- Liquid Dinner: It's time to celebrate your journey. For something casual, try Biergarten or Speakeasy Tap Room. For something with a bit more ambiance, check out Trick Dog, The Hideout, Bourbon and Branch (reservation only Speakeasy), or Yield (biodynamic & organic wine bar).

Los Angeles

Things to do

- The city of cities: Los Angeles is not so much one big city, but a handful of small cities all concentrated together. On the West side, you've got Santa Monica, Venice, Westwood and West LA. More centrally located, you'll find Bel Air, Beverly Hills, Koreatown and Studio City and on the East side of the city, Los Feliz, Silverlake, Echo Park, Chinatown and Downtown LA are bustling neighborhoods with lots to explore. It's impossible to try to tackle it all, but pick a few spots, and discover what those neighborhoods have to offer.
- Iconic LA: When visiting LA, there are at least a few places you just can't miss. Check out Venice Beach and the boardwalk for some of the best, most unpredictable people watching around. Stroll through the cinema worthy Venice Canals. Get majestic views of the city from the Hollywood sign or Griffith Park Observatory. Step back in time at Union Station or Pantages Theatre in Downtown LA. Get your art fix at the Getty Museum, LACMA, MOCA or Broad.
- Outdoor Adventures: LA may seem like it's just an urban jungle, but there's lots to explore in the great outdoors. Within city limits, you can hike up to Griffith Observatory with the masses, offering you rewarding views of Los Angeles as well as the San Fernando Valley to the North. Head slightly North West, and you can find endless trails in the Santa Monica mountains as well as Topanga Canyon. Eagle Rock in Topanga State Park is particularly beautiful. Want to be in nature, but be more relaxed about it? Head into Malibu and visit one of the many wineries offering live music, delicious wine, and spacious lawns for a lazy picnic.

Our drinking & dining recommendations

- Brunch: Downtown: Faith and Flower. Echo Park: Red Hill Station. Central LA: Republique. Los Feliz: Little Dom's. Venice: Sunny Spot. Fairfax: The Fat Dog.
- Lunch: Downtown: Baco Mercat, B.S. Taqueria, Grand Central Market or KazuNori. Arts District: Bread Lounge. Chinatown: Far East Plaza or Amboy. Koreatown: Kobawu. Marina del Rey: Catch and Release.
- Dinner: West Hollywood/Melrose: Norah, Kali or Spartina. South LA: LocoL. Downtown: Officine Brera, Baco Mercat, or Miro. Echo Park: Winsome. Liquid Dinner: There's nothing like a rooftop bar. Check out Rooftop at the Standard Hotel in Downtown, Mama Shelter in Hollywood, Perch LA in Downtown, or Petite Ermitage for a quieter evening in West Hollywood. More of a speakeasy type? Varnish is the place for you.

Safety and Health

Staying Healthy on the Road

Hydrating

Staying hydrated is key to a successful bike trip. Make sure you are staying well hydrated throughout each day, despite cool temperatures. Remember to drink a bottle every 1 to 1.5 hours to make sure your body and energy stay in top shape. We also strongly recommend you keep electrolyte packs or tablets with you for when you need a little help to recover from a hot day or difficult climb. These can be found at most bike shops and sports stores. Should you ever run out of water and you are not near a potable water source, there are iodine tablets in your first aid kit to purify stream or river water.

Stretching

Make sure to take a little time every afternoon to stretch out your legs, back, and shoulders. Biking long distances can take a toll on your joints if you're not in the habit of biking long distances on a regular basis, and stretching can help you avoid swelling, joint pain, and injury.

Eating

You will burn a lot of energy bike touring. Make sure you are taking in enough calories throughout the day to maintain balanced energy levels to avoid fatigue and weakness. Depending on your body and the difficulty of the day's ride, you'll need to eat three proper meals a day, and snack on healthy sources of energy to feel strong and energized. Keep a few snack bars, nuts, and/or fruit handy at all times so you can have easy access to energy when you need it most. Dehydrated meals are also a great option for a quick easy meal on the go. Keep your meals balanced, and make sure you consume enough carbohydrates in your system throughout the day.

Hygiene

Most campsites along the route will have shower access to campers, so you can stay clean and fresh on your trip. As you will have limited clothing with you on your journey, we suggest you wash or rinse your bike clothing each day while you shower so that it is relatively clean for the following ride. You can alternate two sets of bike attire to ensure that clothing is dry before you wear it again. Bike shorts especially should be clean to avoid bacterial infection, and dry to avoid rash and chafing. Some cyclists like to keep baby powder or shammy butter with them to keep the groin area dry and comfortable during long distance rides. We suggest you bring any ointments or products you are used to using to help you avoid irritation.

Rest Day

Make sure that you take advantage of this day! Biking long distances for multiple days in a row will take a toll on any body, and it's important to let your ligaments and muscles recuperate during your trip. We recommend taking a whole day of rest, or if you prefer, breaking two consecutive days in half mid way through your trip will also allow your body to recover.

Road Etiquette

Riding With Others

Riding with friends, or meeting other cyclists on your ride is part of the fun. However, it is important to follow a few safety protocols to avoid common accidents.

- Ride side by side only in quiet areas where cars have ample time to reduce their speed and go around you.
- When passing another rider, let them know! ("On your left!") And always pass on the left.
- When stopping to take a photo, make sure anyone behind you knows you're going to stop and pull off as far to the right as possible.

Visibility

It's extremely important to be visible on the road. This means being aware of changing light when entering forests or near dusk, and making yourself seen when you might camouflage into the shadows on the road. Keep your lights handy for when you think cars might have a hard time seeing you, and take the time to stop in order to turn them on. Our panniers do have reflectors, but it doesn't hurt to wear more reflective gear if you have, or bright colored clothing.

Road Shoulder

Sometimes, the route has a great bike lane (or path) that gives cyclists ample space to ride. Other times, the shoulder becomes much smaller or even disappears. It is extremely important that you give yourself enough space to feel confident and well balanced regardless of shoulder width. If you ride too close to the white line when there is no shoulder, you risk losing your balance or riding off the road. If you ride to the left of the white line, cars will wait to go around you. If you try to ride as far to the right as possible, cars will try to squeeze by. You are much safer riding left of the white line when the shoulder is too narrow than trying to stay close to it.

General Safety

Helmets

As a participant on our trip, you must wear your helmet while riding at all times. At orientation, please make sure the helmet fits you properly and comfortably. If you would prefer to bring your own helmet, we encourage you to do so.

Pedals

We provide flat pedals to all of our riders. If you have your own pedals that you're used to (clip in or other), we encourage you to bring them to orientation so we can install them on your bike. Having the right pedals is the first step to being well balanced. Please do not bring clip in pedals that you have never used, as it is common to fall when you're learning to clip in and out.
